

ISS9PU: PHOTOGRAPHING THE URBAN

US CREDITS: 3

This module explores the representation of the City and the Urban landscape through research and the medium of photography. It will draw inspiration from Scottish architecture, with the metropolitan cities of Stirling and Glasgow being the focus for study, site visits and documentation by participants.

Underpinning the module is an acquisition of skills in practical digital photography (you will need to bring your own camera) alongside sessions that will expose you to different genres of photography.

The module also examines the influence of photography in relation to social culture and conservation. Throughout the course, students will be creating photographic work, in addition to producing a short written assignment about photo histories.

Skills gained:

- > cultural journalism
- > photographic skills
- > principles of photo documentation
- > location photography
- > image editing

Field Trips/Highlights:

This module will include an excursion to relevant historic monuments and sights in the city of Glasgow that complements the photographic histories explored in the module.
